Some Time Up Front Saves the "Ad is on Deadline!!!!" Panic Later

Key Ordering "Gotchas!"

When ordering AdPoint ads, we know there's always the pressure of getting the ads in the system quickly. Reps live and breathe deadlines and start breathing down your neck about fast ordering.

However, sometimes, it's better to....stop, drop and...ok, not roll...but make sure you aren't doing something in haste that will just hold up the ads later.

Here's some key ordering gotchas that will mire ads in the systems swamp.

Electric Avenue: DM "Plug In"

Digital Marketing Services (DMS) Ads Are Special

When ordering Digital Marketing/DMS cycle based ads, it is important to not book them using the standard booking form. The "DM Plug In" must be used for most types of DMS ads. Hey, it's Gannett, so there are some exceptions, but we are discussing common practices here.

If you feel like you need Rosetta stone for the term "DM Plug In," here's the booking instructions: Fulfillment Team AdPoint Digital Marketing Order Entry Quick Reference Guide.pdf.

When DMS ads are booked, a separate ad is created for each of the cycles. These cycles all must be in the same ad group. Using the DM Plug In booking process mentioned above is what places them in the ad group.

Take a tour through some examples below.

Yay and Nay: Correct and Incorrect Examples of Cycle Based DMS Ad Booking

Take a journey through the world o' ad groups, DMS, cycles, oh my!

Step 1

Yesssss! Corrrrect DMS Booking Example

All ads ☐ Show local package ads ☐ Hide cancelled ads ☐ Show local ads ☐ Show cancelled flex ads ☐ Show ad group's subtotals ☐ Show autofilters Export

☐	Ad name	Material #	Publication date	Media channel	Ad Ref.#	Gross	Net	Status	Approval progress = ALL =	Ad group #	Ad group	P

31902	Maria DM Plug In Example	41780338	7/31/2025	Digital		750.00	750.00	Pre booking	No approval is required	6030892	Search ($750 min per month) #1

This DMS cycle based ad was booked using the DM Plug In. See how all ads for each cycle have the same ad group? Winner, winner chicken dinner! That is what we want.

Step 2

Nope! Incorrect DMS Booking Example

All ads ☐ Show local package ads ☐ Hide cancelled ads ☐ Show local ads ☐ Show cancelled flex ads ☐ Show ad group's subtotals ☐

☒ Show autofilters Export

Search ($750 min per month) - DM SRCH $750 min GAIN	41780341	6/5/2025	Digital		750.00	750.00	Proposal	No approval is required	0	(default)

These DMS cycle based ads were not booked using the DM Plug In. See how there are no ad groups on the ads? Do not pass go, do not collect $200, these ads will not be pushable to the fulfillment systems.

Step 3

Nope Squared! Another Incorrect DMS Booking Example

All ads
☐ Show local package ads ☐ Hide cancelled ads ☐ Show local ads ☐ Show cancelled flex ads ☐ Show ad gro ☒ Show autofilters Export Cu
Ad name	Material #	Publication date	Media channel	Ad Ref.#	Gross	Net	Status	Approval progress	Ad group #	Ad group	Plac

This ad has no ad group, even though it's a single cycle. Even when booking single cycle ads (under the minimum number of cycles for events, etc.), still use the DM Plug In. An ad must have an ad group in order to be pushed to the fulfillment systems.

OPPORTUNITIES.

Wait! I've got another ad for that order!

We all hear this plea from the reps. It seems like it would be so much easier to add another ad to an order that has already been advanced by pushing the green button.

However, no matter how many times we want to "sneak in just one more ad on the order," the ad will never go anywhere. It stubbornly plants its feet and stays in confirmed or proposal status.

It's like a watched pot. No matter how long we watch the ad status, it will never magically change to Awaiting Reservation.

Once you've pushed the green button to advance workflow on an order, you must add any new ads to a new order.

A Picture is Worth 1000 Words

Here's an example. The workflow was already advanced on this order, by clicking on the Advance Workflow green button. Two of the ads are at Awaiting Reservation. The new ad was added after that workflow advance. It will remain at Confirmed until the cows come home.

Click on the picture to the right to make it bigger to see the statuses.

Don't Let Workflow Run Away

Workflow will run away on an order in certain ordering circumstances. To make sure your order workflow doesn't flip out on you, flip the cards to learn more.

When adding new ads while intending to cancel old ads on an non-advanced order, be sure to add the new ads first and then cancel the old ads.

Cancelling the old ads first and then adding the new ads will make the order workflow take

If you create an order and abandon it, workflow will ghost you.

Can't Touch This: Ad Statuses

Hands Off!

We never change ad statuses manually. Workflow sets ad statuses automatically and changing them manually can cause ads to become stuck.

Don't know how to even change ad statuses? Perfect! We won't tell you how to do that here. :)

"I Get By with a Little Help from My Friends" Ordering Tips to Help Sales Reps

When you aren't booking ads yourself, we know that the reps sometimes reach out to you when they are using Campaign Planner in Salesforce.

In the next few sections, we'll talk about some key items to help them not turn Campaign Planner into "Complain Planner."

CONTINUE

Let's Stay Together: Select All

Don't Pick and Choose--You Lose!

In Campaign Planner, the reps have to go to a Confirm screen (accessed through the Confirm Order button on the opportunity in Salesforce) to make their ads live.

Once they are on that screen, they need to always Select All Ads there. They cannot pick and choose.

If they need to cancel any ads, they should go back to Campaign Planner (using the Campaign Planner button on the opportunity in Salesforce) and cancel them there.

Not checking ads on the confirm screen won't just prevent those ads from moving on. It will prevent ALL the ads from moving on--even those checked.

Correct!

Here's an example where the sales rep "understood the assignment" on the Confirm screen. All ads are selected.

FYI, click on the picture if you are at the "reading glasses age" and need to enlarge it.

Nope!

Here's an example where the ads will get stuck. If only certain ads are selected, NONE of the ads will move on--yes, even those selected. Yes, it's a head scratcher, but that's how the system works.

"Add the New, Then Cancel the Old:" A Mantra for All

The rule of always adding new ads before cancelling old ads applies to Campaign Planner just like native AdPoint.

New Ads, Cancels, Oh My!

Let's look at the order that reps should add new ads and cancel in Campaign Planner.
It's the same as native AdPoint, but it's good to see the scenes.

The Process Workflow button can be used in instances where ads immediately need to go to the downstream team/systems. For example, late ads, etc. It will advance ads quickly from a status of confirmed to awaiting reservation.

- 1 Create order/ads using normal processes.
- 2 Advance workflow by pushing the first green button, as always.
- 3 Push the Second Green button—Process Workflow.
- 4 Refresh the screen. Note, without refreshing the screen, you will not see the change of ad statuses. The screen does not refresh automatically unlike when using the Advance Workflow button.

If possible, the ad statuses move from Confirmed to Awaiting Reservation. Note, if the ads are awaiting approval or have other issues, the status will not change. It doesn't hurt anything to try Process Workflow, even if it doesn't work.
